reports for any chosen period for the last 3 hours. • Usage summaries for any chosen period. When using a paid service, like having a paid broadband Internet subscription, it is always a good idea to keep an eye on the usage so you won't exceed the quota and find yourself in the unpleasant situation of having to pay much more than you would expect. For users of the BSNL Broadband service, formerly known as Data One, a specialized application is available and it can be quite useful for managing bandwidth consumption. Called Dataone Quick Usage Finder, this tool is very easy to install and use. Clean looks and reports From the simple interface you can log into your account and then access monthly usage, view bills and usage summaries and more. A neat option that is enabled by default is the automatic detection of the subscribed plan. Also, you have the possibility to immediately access the stats for any of the last 6 months with one click. The 'Summary' tab inside the main window offers valuable details concerning the used bandwidth, the daily average, as well as the balance bandwidth and the average per day. With Dataone Quick Usage Finder you can also view how many days remain for the selected plan. Billing information Insofar as the billing is concerned, the program is able to display a variety of information. Thus, you can check out the excess charges and the standard plan price. The service tax is also taken into consideration and the grand total includes that fee as well, so you will know exactly how much money you have to pay each month. Bottom line At a glance, Dataone Quick Usage Finder seems to be a highly specialized utility that is only useful for people with BSNL subscriptions. Nonetheless, for those who have such a plan going on for them, the application is undoubtedly of great help since it is a valuable tool for monitoring bandwidth usage and service costs. Very disappointing. First of all I have not yet seen any measurements. But I also have another problem with the application: I want to connect from work using my BSNL ID and login, but it does not work. When I go to the application on my PC at home, it works ok, but I cannot login. Also, I found it very difficult to install the program and it has already 3% or so infected with viruses. I hope the makers make the program more reliable and easy to install. Description: Dataone Quick Usage Finder is a free monitoring software program to manage BSNL broadband Internet service. It
